

Elder abuse – the mistreatment of an older person

Who is abused?

Both older men and women can be at risk of being abused.

Are there different kinds of abuse?

People can be abused in different ways. These include:

- Physical abuse
- Psychological abuse
- Financial abuse
- Sexual abuse
- Neglect

Where does abuse happen?

Abuse can occur anywhere:

- someone's own home
- a carer's home
- day care
- residential care
- a nursing home
- hospital

Who abuses?

The abuser is usually well known to the person being abused. They may be:

- a partner, child or relative
- a friend or neighbour
- a paid or volunteer care worker
- a health or social worker, or other professional
- older people may also be abused by a person they care for

Why does it happen?

There are many reasons why abuse occurs and these may vary with each incident. Many of its causes are not yet fully understood. Abuse may range from a spontaneous act of frustration to systematic premeditated assaults on an older person.

At home some of the causes would appear to include:

- poor quality long term relationships
- a carer's inability to provide the level of care required
- a carer with mental or physical health problems

In other settings abuse may be a symptom of a poorly run establishment. It is also likely to occur when staff are:

- inadequately trained
- poorly supervised
- have little support from management
- work in isolation

What to do and who to contact

What to do and who to contact

If you are being abused or are concerned about someone you know, it is very important to talk it through with someone without fear or guilt.

However, you should always be aware that, despite your concerns, any older person has the right to decline assistance from any source.

Support and information is available from Action on Elder Abuse through its helpline:

ELDER ABUSE RESPONSE
080 8808 8141
Monday – Friday: 10am – 4.30pm

If you feel the problem is very serious and warrants immediate action (for example if a person is at imminent risk of harm) you should contact the police.

The number of your local police station will be in the telephone directory.

In an emergency you should dial 999.

What is Elder Abuse?

Action on Elder Abuse aims to prevent abuse in old age by raising awareness, education, promoting research and the collection and dissemination of information.
